ABSTRACT
The Richmond Regional Transportation Planning Organization (RRTPO) is in the process of updating the regional Long-Range Transportation Plan (LRTP) to the horizon year 2050. This LRTP has been branded Pathways to the Future: Transportation 2050. As part of this process and in keeping with federal regulations, a detailed assessment of regional transportation issues and needs was developed. This assessment, and consultation with localities and agencies, informed development of a set of possible projects (known as the “Universe of Projects”) to consider for regional investment.

Introduction

The Richmond Region's multimodal transportation system's existing conditions and issues are described in Chapter 3 of the Transportation 2050 plan. This report provides information about how a detailed assessment of regional transportation issues and needs was developed, and how that process informed development of a set of possible projects (known as the "Universe of Projects") to consider for regional investment.

Regional and Local Issues Inventory

A detailed assessment of regional transportation issues and needs was developed to identify gaps in the transportation network in order to find the discrepancies between the current state of the transportation system and the desired, safe and interconnected transportation system.

The assessment was divided into two sections: transportation Issues and transportation Needs.

- Transportation Issues are defined as deficiencies facing the current regional multimodal transportation network. Issues include deficiencies in safety, congestion, accessibility, predictability, infrastructure condition, and resiliency (see box).
- Transportation Needs are defined as the potential solutions to the overarching issues, including road capacity changes, interchange modifications, grade separations, new transit routes, road realignments, road extensions, new roads, active transportation improvements, multimodal solutions, port capital improvements, and additional park and rides.

Issues Examples

Safety - Ensuring that people can travel without being hurt or killed, whether they are driving, biking, walking, or using public transportation

Accessibility - Making sure everyone can get where they need to go, including people with disabilities, older adults, or those without a car

Congestion - Traffic or crowding on roads, buses, or trains that slows everyone down and makes trips take longer than expected

Predictability - Ensuring that people can plan their trips and know how long it will take to get somewhere, without unexpected delays or confusion

Infrastructure Conditions - The state of the roads, bridges, sidewalks, bus stops, and train tracks—whether they're well-maintained or falling apart

Travel Options - Having different ways to get around, like driving, taking the bus, biking, walking, or using ride-share services

Interconnectivity - Making it easy to switch between different types of transportation, like going from a train to a bus or from biking to walking, without extra hassle

Design - How roads, sidewalks, bike paths, and transit stations are built to make travel safe, comfortable, and easy for everyone

The assessment of Issues and Needs was conducted for the different transportation modes, which included:

- Transit: bus routes, bus stops, microtransit zones, park and rides, and ridership.
- Active transportation: trails (linear miles), mixed use facilities
- Roadway: Functional classification, regional roadway network, national highway system
- Freight: Rail, Air, Port Infrastructure; freight corridors, at-grade rail crossings; commodity flow (tonnage, value), passenger rail ridership

The sources of information for this assessment included government agencies, industry-specific sources, mode-specific reports, and census data. The data was analyzed through GIS mapping/visualization, determination of historical trends, reviewing existing pavement and structure conditions, and safety/risk assessments.

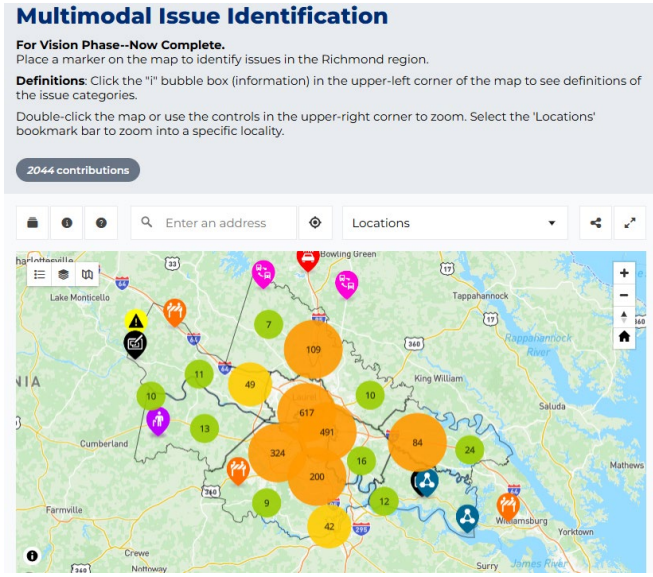

The resulting draft inventory was reviewed by localities and stakeholder agencies and refined based on the feedback received via individual meetings and written comments. The LRTP-AWG reviewed and approved the Existing Multimodal Transportation Issues and Needs Inventory at its meeting on August 27, 2025. The Existing Multimodal Transportation Issus and Needs Inventory was subsequently approved by the RRTPO Policy Committee on October 2, 2025.
The specific steps used to compile the information are described below, and the final Existing Multimodal Transportation Issues and Needs Inventory spreadsheet is included as Appendix 1.

Steps

1. Issue identification – data analysis and research. Staff undertook data gathering and analysis and review of other sources of information. Examples of the sources of information for the different categories include:
    a. Safety: Potential for Safety Improvements, pedestrian safety action plan, regional transportation safety plan, VTRANS
    b. Accessibility: BikePedRVA 2045, Transit Vision Plan, I-95/Commerce Rd/RMT Study, Richmond Tri Cities Intermodal Strategies Study, Commerce Corridor Study
    c. Congestion/Predictability: Congestion Management Process (see Technical Report D), VDOT STARS Studies, IMR/IJR Studies, Arterial Management Studies
    d. Infrastructure Condition: VDOT Pathways for Planning Pavement Conditions, City of Richmond PCI data, Henrico County PCI data, VDOT urban roads dashboard data (see Technical Reports B and C).
    e. Travel Options: Virginia Passenger Rail Authority Layover Feasibility Study, Raleigh to Richmond Program S-Line Project, 2022 State of Rail Plan, DC2RVA
    f. Locality Projects: Comprehensive Plans, local area plans
    g. Resiliency: Flooding and projected sea level rise data

2. Issue identification – Public input. Public input was gathered through the project engagement web page, via a Multimodal Issue Identification mapping tool. This tool allowed the public to map issues based on their experience of the transportation system and to provide information about the type of issue.

3. The information gathered from step #1 was entered into an Issues Compilation Spreadsheet. The spreadsheet content included: issue description, issue category, issue type (e.g., highway, transit), need category (e.g., roadway – realignment, transit – new proposed route), location, jurisdiction, source, source detail, and, if applicable, the proposed project (from plan/study). The Issues information gathered from these sources was mapped on the roadway network to particular sites, or roadway “links” (e.g., a small section of road). Once compiled, the spreadsheet included over 47,000 individual entries.

4. The Issues inventory was narrowed by focusing on regionally significant corridors, and by consolidating link-level issues to the corridor level. First, having mapped the issues to the roadway network, the issues were sorted to only retain those that occurred on a roadway that was part of the defined LRTP Road Network (see Chapter 5). Then, the link-level issues were consolidated into roadway corridors, which are longer stretches of road (multiple links). This allowed visualization of corridors with multiple documented issues and indicated the presence of major issues on certain corridors. A category was identified as a major issue if it affected 30% or more of a corridor or interchange. Maps were developed to complement the information in the spreadsheet, showing the location of the issues on the LRTP Network. There were also several maps depicting information that was not in the spreadsheet: public comment locations (mapping of input from step #2), transportation issues and needs described in Comprehensive Plans, and travel option issues (railroad issues and prioritized regional census tracts for park-and-ride lots). These maps were compiled into a Story Map.

5. In the next step, the Needs, or potential solutions to the Issues, were compiled for this consolidated, corridor-level view of the Issues; the Needs (e.g., road extension or new transit route) were compiled from information in the studies and plans that were analyzed. The categories of Needs included: Road Capacity, Interchange Modification, Grade Separation, New Regional Transit Route, Road Realignment, Roadway Extension, New Road, Regional Active Network Gap, Multimodal, Port Capital Improvement, Active Transit Access, Park and Ride, or TBD/Other.

6. The regional compilation of issues and needs was collected within the LTRP Multimodal Transportation Needs Inventory Spreadsheet and Interactive Map and were shared with LRTP Locality Staff. PlanRVA Staff provided the Advisory Work Group locality and agency staff with the Issues Inventory Spreadsheet and Story Map. Following several weeks of AWG review, staff then scheduled hour long meetings with AWG members, leading to a finalized spreadsheet and issues Story Map.

Universe of Projects Development

The Universe of Projects stage involved identifying transportation project-based solutions to address the categories of issues identified through the process described above. These project-based solutions are more defined and detailed proposals than the broad Need categories; a project should have defined "from" and "to" locations an anticipated timeframe for which it will be phased for completion, and an anticipated project cost. This step in the process resulted in a streamlined inventory of multimodal transportation projects that could be considered regionally significant, known as the "Universe of Projects."

The work and input of the Project Champions was key to creating the list of projects. RRTPO staff and Project Champions looked to completed or ongoing regional and local transportation studies and plans that identified a transportation project solution to address a specific identified transportation issue. For example, projects were drawn from previous LRTPs; projects that had been submitted for funding through the SmartScale, CVTA or RRTPO programs but had not been funded; and other recent plans and studies. RRTPO staff and Project Champions reviewed these projects and compiled other possible projects identified through locality Comprehensive Plans or other transportation planning documents. The resulting initial set of projects was screened to confirm that each project would address an Issue listed in the Existing Multimodal Transportation Issues and Needs Inventory.

To be considered for inclusion in Transportation 2050, all possible projects were also required to be "regionally significant." Staff worked with the LRTP Advisory Committee to develop a commonly accepted set of Project Inclusion Guidelines, which were used to determine what was considered regionally significant and thus whether a project was considered a regional or a local project.

Finally, RRTPO staff worked with the jurisdictional staff and the LRTP-AWG to refine the Universe of Projects to add projects or to remove duplicative, previously funded, or unsupported projects. The Universe of Projects list was approved by the LRTP-AWG on December 3, 2025. Following some further revisions to remove duplications and combine projects where necessary, the Universe of Projects list was finalized. The final Universe of Projects included 198 projects in six project categories—highways, bridges, transit, active transportation, park and ride, and rail.

The final Universe of Projects spreadsheet is included as Appendix 2.

P2F_150	Richmond to Raleigh (R2R) passenger rail alignment along the I-85 corridor. The R2R corridor, specifically the abandoned 75 miles of the S-line that VPRA acquired from CSX in November of 2022, is important to enhance and grow intercity passenger rail service in the Southeast. When combined with the Long Bridge Project, R2R will better connect Amtrak service in North Carolina and Virginia with Amtrak connections in the Northeast. Project Cost cited is the Project Development Budget for 30% design.	Multi-Jurisdiction	Freight/Passenger Rail	$39,000,000
